Home Office Calculation methods

Please read through the information below and then complete this table

Period of Using Home Office

Dates	No of Hours	How were hours recorded
1/7/2019 to 29/2/2020
1/3/2020 to 30/6/2020
Total

Depending on which method is best for you we may need the following details of actual expenses incurred

	1/7/19 to 29/2/20 $	1/3/20 to 30/6/20 $	Year Totals $
Power bills
Phone
Internet
Computer consumables
Plant and equipment like printers computers etc

There are three ways of calculating home office expenses depending on your circumstances. The methods are the:

- Shortcut method (80 cents) – only available 1 March to 30 June 2020
- Fixed rate method (52 cents)
- Actual cost method

Shortcut method

This method is temporary and only available for the period 1 March to 30 June 2020. All employees working from home in this period can use this method.

Using this method, you can claim 80 cents per hour for each hour you work from home during the period 1 March to 30 June 2020.

You can choose to use this rate if you:

- are working from home to fulfil your employment duties, not just carrying out minimal tasks such as occasionally checking emails or taking calls
- have incurred additional running expenses as a result of working from home.

The shortcut method covers all of your work from home expenses, such as:

- phone expenses
- internet expenses
- the decline in value of equipment and furniture
- electricity and gas for heating, cooling and lighting.

If you use this method, you can't claim any other expenses for working from home.

You don't need to have a dedicated work area to use this method. However, you must keep a record of the number of hours you have worked from home. This could be a timesheet, roster, a diary or documents that set out the hours you worked from home.

You don't have to use the shortcut method, you can choose to use one of the existing methods to calculate your deduction. You can use the method or methods that will give you the best outcome as long as you meet the working criteria and record keeping requirements for each method.

If you had a work from home arrangement before 1 March 2020, you will need to use one of the existing methods to calculate your deduction for the period 1 July 2019 to 29 February 2020.

Fixed rate method

You can claim a deduction of 52 cents for each hour you work from home for the work-related expenses you incur for additional running expenses. The fixed rate covers all expenses you incur for:

- the decline in value of home office furniture and furnishings – for example, a desk
- electricity and gas for heating, cooling and lighting
- the cost of repairs to your home office equipment, furniture and furnishings.

To claim using this method, you must keep records of either:

- your actual hours spent working at home for the year
- a diary for a representative four-week period to show your usual pattern of working at home.

You can apply the four-week representative period across the remainder of the year to determine your full deduction amount. However, if your work pattern changes you will need to create a new record.

To use this method, you need to have a dedicated work area, such as a home office when you work from home.

This method doesn't include the following, so you will need to separately calculate your work-related use for:

- phone expenses
- internet expenses
- computer consumables and stationery – such as ink
- decline in value of equipment – such as phones, computers and laptops.

To claim the work-related portion of these expenses you must have records such as:

- receipts or other written evidence that shows the amount spent on expenses and depreciating assets you purchased
- phone accounts identifying your work-related calls and private calls to work out your percentage of work-related use for a representative period
- a diary that shows
 - a representative four-week period of your usual pattern of working at home
 - any small expenses ($10 or less) that you can't get a receipt for totalling no more than $200
 - your work-related internet use
 - the percentage of the year you used depreciating assets exclusively for work.

WORK RELATED EXPENSES - DEDUCTIBILITY

To be deductible, the expense must be incurred in gaining or producing assessable income ie. there must be a direct connection between the expense and your income earning activities. To make a claim for the 2019/2020 year you must have incurred the expense after 30/6/2019 and before 1/7/2020.

Expenses will not be deductible if they are not incurred in gaining or producing assessable income. The ATO have issued rulings specifying that they consider certain items to be non-deductible even if they are work related. Whether or not the Courts will endorse all these rulings is a matter of doubt.

Some of the items considered not deductible by the ATO for most employees are: shoes and hosiery (unless part of a distinctive compulsory uniform), grooming, clocks and watches, most travel between home and work, daily newspapers, English language courses etc. Reasonable overtime meal allowances are not taxable to the employee and are not usually shown on the group certificate.

ALLOWANCES - SUBSTANTIATION

The receipt of an allowance does not automatically entitle an employee to deductions for expenses incurred in relation to the allowance. Claims can only be made against an allowance if expenditure is incurred, it is allowable as a deduction, and the requirements of the substantiation provisions are satisfied.

If the expenses are allowable, and the substantiation requirements are satisfied, the amount allowable is not limited by the amount of allowance received. Reimbursements are not generally included in assessable income and are not deductible. However, if Motor Vehicle expenses are reimbursed on a cents per kilometre basis the amount is included in assessable income and a deduction is allowable.

WORK RELATED EXPENSES – SUBSTANTIATION

If your total claims for work-related expenses are more than $300 you must keep receipts to prove your claims. If the total of your claims is $300 or less you do not need to keep receipts but you must have spent the money to earn your income. You should keep a diary of your expenses and a record of how you worked out your claims. For work-related expenses, the records you must keep are receipts, invoices or similar documentary evidence except where a diary is sufficient. A diary may be used to prove your claims for expenses that are not more than $10 each and add up to no more than $200 or for which it was unreasonable to expect to get a receipt.

Special substantiation rules apply to claims for car expenses and travel expenses. The diary must show the name of the supplier and the date, amount and nature of the expenditure.
